HOLY CROSS CONSERVATION AREA

DESIGNATED
MARCH 1981

BROMSGROVE DISTRICT COUNCIL

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

'The Bell & Cross Public House' Bromsgrove Road

Holy Cross contains a number of listed buildings of special architectural or historic interest and nearby, closely associated with both Holy Cross and Clent, is the Church at Romsley of St. Kenelm, a Grade 1 building dedicated to the boy King Kenelm who was murdered in the Clent Hills in 819 AD at the word of his wicked sister Quendrya.

The legend of Kenelm and his martyrdom may have been instrumental in the growth of Holy Cross and Clent as the settlements were an important resting place for pilgrims visiting the Clent Hills in search of miracles and travelling to pay homage to the Saxon King. Like the neighbouring village of Clent, Holy Cross is located barely 2 miles from the edge of the West Midlands conurbation and its architectural and historic interest has endured.

The arrangement of the village focused on a cross roads of the old Hagley-Bromsgrove Road has given it a distinctive character within a rural setting. After being surveyed the character and appearance of Holy Cross was assessed as meriting Conservation Area Status. For this reason Holy Cross was designated as a Conservation Area in 1981 in order that the character of the settlement should be protected.

WHAT IS A CONSERVATION AREA

Conservation areas are designated by the District Council as areas of special architectural or historic interest, the character and appearance of which the Council considers desirable to preserve or enhance.

Designation gives additional planning controls, but the success of measures to protect and enhance an area depends on there being community support, particularly from property occupiers. It is the special quality and interest of the area, rather than the merit of individual buildings that is the prime consideration in identifying conservation areas.

It may be the group value of listed buildings, their relationship to each other, property boundaries, archaeology, spaces and landscape between the buildings and their materials and craftsmanship that are important.

The interest often extends beyond the physical character since the social and economic history is usually instrumental in how the area still appears today.

COUNCIL CONSERVATION AREA RESPONSIBILITIES

The Council has other duties in respect of conservation areas. These include the preparation of character appraisals, which say what is historically and architecturally special about the area and what detracts from it.

These are necessary before proceeding to the preparation of policies and proposal for preserving and enhancing the conservation area, which are a statutory requirement. These measures require public support and consultation is implicit.

Where the character of an area is threatened by development that is normally permitted, such as replacement of original windows with UPVC ones, the Council can instigate additional controls requiring planning permission for such changes.

CONSERVATION PLANNING POLICY

Planning policies effecting how the Council will deal with development proposals will be included within The Local Development Framework. Any policies affecting conservation areas will be produced in consultation with the public.

WHAT DOES DESIGNATION MEAN

The Council is required to pay special attention to the desirability of preserving or enhancing the character and appearance of conservation areas and their settings when determining planning applications.

The applications have to be advertised and the Council must take account of material objections in their decision.

Conservation area consent is required for the demolition or substantial demolition of buildings and complete boundary walls and gates.

Additional planning controls apply in conservation areas, which would normally be permitted in other areas. These relate to the size of extensions, the type of external cladding permitted, inserting dormer windows and satellite dishes.

TREES

Trees can make a significant contribution to the character of Conservation Areas. You must give the Council six weeks' notice in writing if you want to carry out work on trees, which are more than 7.5 centimetres in diameter (measured 1.5 metres above the ground).

Non-compliance with this provision is an offence under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990.

These provisions are only a summary and full details of the exact legal wording can be obtained from the Council.
